US domestic plate prices tick up in robust demand environment

By Melissa VanDervort - Tuesday 03 March

Steel plate prices in the US rose for a fifth consecutive week on Tuesday March 3, with sources reporting a sustained uptick in demand and trading as market participants expect further mill price increase announcements in the near term.

Fastmarkets' weekly assessment for steel cut-to-length plate carbon grade, fob mill US was $58 per hundredweight ($1,160 per short ton) on Tuesday, up by $1 per cwt, or 1.75%, from $57 per cwt on February 24.

Inputs were collected in a range from $56-62 per cwt, representing deals, offers and general assessments of the spot market.

Demand for domestic plate has been steadily rising alongside higher spot transaction prices, sources said, with domestic prices increasing for the fifth consecutive week.

Market participants expect that another round of mill price hikes will be announced in the near term, citing strengthening demand and solid trading in the domestic plate market.

US steelmaker Nucor announced a plate price increase of $50 per ton ($2.50 per cwt) in a letter to customers on Friday February 13, followed by Swedish steelmaker SSAB with an increase of $60 per ton in a customer letter on Monday February 16.

"Demand appears to be steady and increasing," a buyer said. "Future price increases are coming. I also expect to see more buyers taking import position as domestic plate prices get higher and lead times push out further."

A distributor agreed with that sentiment, saying, "The mills are telling us they are very busy and getting project work, [but] I don't think plate prices will increase at a faster pace moving forward than hot rolled [coil]."

"We expect another round of [price] increases in both March and April," a second distributor said. "Demand [is] good enough for mills to keep the supply-side pressure up. [I have been] hearing demand could kick in the second quarter, which would keep the momentum going. We'll see, but [in the] short term, it's a mill's world."

A third distributor shared a similar view, saying, "[Transaction] prices have gone up along with activity. We do expect another round of price increases. This week has been strong with booking new orders and more customers looking to put down inventory, however not a substantial amount, but more than before. Hopefully the demand stays for some time."

Lead times were reported at four to six weeks.

Rebar news

China's domestic rebar prices flat on higher production costs, weak demand

By Jessica Zong - Tuesday 03 March

China's domestic rebar prices held steady on Tuesday March 3, amid subdued buying activity in both arbitrage market and construction sites, sources said.

The increase in oil contract prices contributed to a bullish sentiment in the coking coal futures market, subsequently driving up coking coal contract prices, according to sources.

The most actively traded May coking coal futures contract on the Dalian Commodity Exchange closed at 1,127 yuan ($163) per tonne on Tuesday, reflecting a rise of 33 yuan per tonne from Monday's close of 1,094 yuan per tonne.

Higher coking coal prices raised market expectations of elevated production costs, thereby lending support to rebar prices.

Nevertheless, persistently weak demand from both the arbitrage market and end users limited any potential increase in rebar prices.

A Shanghai-based trader reported that several buyers inquired about rebar offers during the afternoon when rebar futures strengthened, but refrained from placing orders, preferring to wait and see.

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar) domestic, ex-whs Eastern China was at 3,070-3,080 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, unchanged from Monday.

Market Chatter

"The appreciation in the Chinese yuan has resulted in higher rebar export prices, further widening the gap between offers and bids. In addition, the conflict in the Middle East has led to an approximately 10% increase in bulk carrier freight costs, causing many export market participants to hesitate before proceeding with transactions," an exporter based in east China said.

Fastmarkets' calculation for steel reinforcing bar (rebar) index export, fob China main port was 480.92 per tonne on Tuesday, up by $1.75 per tonne from $479.17 per tonne a week earlier on February 24.

Billet

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for steel billet domestic, exw Tangshan, Northern China was 2,910 yuan per tonne including value-added tax on Tuesday, down by 10 yuan per tonne from 2,920 yuan per tonne on Monday.

Shanghai Futures Exchange

The most-traded May rebar futures contract on the Shanghai Futures Exchange closed at 3,074 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, up by 7 yuan per tonne from the closing price of 3,067 yuan per tonne on Monday.
