produced using the traditional blast furnace route and came in at 0-200 yuan per tonne on July 31.

Market chatter

"The market stability reflects a temporary easing of bearish sentiment rather than a fundamental shift," a China-based industry analyst said. "Cost support has strengthened following the coking coal supply disruption, but the broader market continues to face weak demand alongside constrained supplies."

Shanghai Futures Exchange

The most-traded SHFE HRC October contract closed at 3,201 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, up by 4 yuan from Monday's close at 3,197 yuan per tonne.

Asia steel billet prices continue slide after latest trade, sentiment remains weak

By Paul Lim - Tuesday 04 August

Steel billet import prices in Southeast Asia remained under downward pressure on Tuesday August 4 amid continuing weak sentiment, sources told Fastmarkets.

Ferrous futures in China have recently been under immense pressure amid a flurry of bearish news, including the lack of new stimulus measures in China, a demand lull across many parts of Asia and the volatile geopolitical climate situation globally.

Long steel prices in Asia have also fallen, with rebar prices in Singapore sliding below $500 per tonne CFR on a theoretical-weight basis, while Indonesian wire rod was on offer at around $500 per tonne CFR Southeast Asia for bulk cargoes.

All these factors have combined to put downward pressure on steel billet prices across Asia.

One major Indonesian blast furnace steelmaker again reduced its steel billet offer price on August 3, for billet with a November laycan, to $456 per tonne FOB, to further boost sales after selling substantial quantities over the past two weeks.

At least 80,000-100,000 tonnes of steel billet were said to have been sold to northern Vietnamese mills in the week to July 24 alone, while substantial volumes sold to other Southeast Asian markets last week, including 40,000 tonnes to Malaysia.

Sources also said that about 40,000 tonnes of billet was heading to Latin America.

Some 20,000 tonnes of Indian induction furnace steel billet was being loaded this week, they added, destined for Indonesia.

A trader source said that shipment was sold at $455-460 per tonne FOB, although this could not be confirmed with the parties involved by the time of publication.

In the Philippines, offers remained steady at $480 per tonne CFR Manila for 5sp-grade material, while spot price estimates came in at $475 per tonne CFR Manila.

A trade was heard at $479 per tonne CFR Philippines for 5sp-grade billet with modified manganese content in the middle of last week.

This came to light after 40,000 tonnes of Chinese 5sp-grade billet was sold at $478 per tonne CFR Manila to a major Filipino reroller in the previous week.

A trade was also heard for 60,000 tonnes of billet at more than $476 per tonne CFR Manila last week, sources said, although no further details were available.

In Indonesia, offers for 3sp-grade material fell by $5 per tonne to $465 per tonne CFR in the week to Tuesday, down $5 per tonne from on July 30.

"This also means that offers for 5sp-grade material should be around $470 per tonne CFR Indonesia," a trader source in the country told Fastmarkets.

In China, offers came in at $446 per tonne FOB for base-grade material, with market participants expecting spot prices to continue falling.

Fastmarkets' twice-weekly price assessment for steel billet import, cfr Manila, was $475 per tonne on Tuesday, unchanged from last Thursday.

The corresponding twice-weekly price assessment for steel billet import, cfr Indonesia, was $470 per tonne on Tuesday, narrowing downward by $5 per tonne from $470-475 per tonne July 30.
