US domestic steel plate prices stable amid strengthening demand

By Melissa VanDervort - Tuesday 14 April

Steel plate prices in the US were steady on Tuesday April 14 after rising last week following price increase announcements from plate manufacturers Nucor, SSAB Americas and Algoma Steel, with sources reporting an ongoing uptick in domestic demand and market activity.

Fastmarkets’ weekly assessment for steel cut-to-length plate carbon grade, fob mill US was $62 per hundredweight ($1,240 per short ton) on Tuesday, flat from April 7 and up by 3.33%, or $2.00 per cwt, from $60 per cwt on March 31.

Inputs were collected in a range of $60-65 per cwt, representing offers and general assessments of the spot market.

The domestic plate market was boosted by strong demand, sources said, following across-the-board mill price increases from Nucor, SSAB Americas and Algoma Steel in the first week of April.

“We have seen steady demand overall. I talked to a couple of plate mills and they both claim to be very busy with energy, wind tower, bridge and heavy equipment [projects]. Prices should continue to rise slowly,” a distributor said.

Sources said that the market has accepted the recent price hikes, with more expected to follow in May as demand continues to be robust.

“The market will accept the price hikes. In fact, we are seeing a big uptick in plate demand over the past couple of weeks as companies rush to get more plate on order before further price hikes kick in,” a buyer said. “I personally think that most mills are running at close to their functional capacity and will continue to raise prices through June.”

A second plate buyer shared a comparable view, saying, “The plate market continues to hold steady. I think the market will accept this round of price increases, as well as the next round in 30 to 45 days.”

A second distributor said the outlook for demand in the third quarter of 2026 remains somewhat murky, despite elevated demand and activity levels in the first and second quarters.

“[The] big question is if plate mills will raise prices again in May for July deliveries. Q2 [is] all in the [order] books, and Q3 is about as clear as mud at the moment,” the second distributor said. “[You] can make an argument for higher prices and increased demand as well as the market peaking and [then] pulling back. No one I talk to today has a good feel for Q3 at the moment.”

Lead times were reported at six to eight weeks.

Rebar news

Bullish Saudi Arabian ferrous scrap market expects further price increases

By Lee Allen - Tuesday 14 April

Steel mills in Saudi Arabia were expecting another round of price increases for ferrous scrap on Tuesday April 14 due to strong rebar prices and a lack of raw materials supply in the country.

Continued blockages to the Strait of Hormuz amid the ongoing regional conflict have caused major problems to Arabian Gulf-based steelmakers accessing iron ore pellets needed to produce direct-reduced iron (DRI), sources have told Fastmarkets.

Therefore, while several steelmakers in Saudi Arabia have opted to reduce their production volumes to draw down less of their raw materials inventories, certain mills have also relied on a larger proportion of ferrous scrap within their raw material mix, sources said.

"All steelmaking factories are open, but because of the [consequences of the] conflict, scrap demand is higher," a scrap processor source said on Wednesday.

Rebar prices at some Saudi Arabian mills have increased by around 200 riyals ($53) per tonne at in April alone, with reduced steel output combined with moderate construction demand in the country, sources told Fastmarkets.

Fastmarkets' weekly assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar), domestic, delivered Saudi Arabia was 2,300-2,550 riyals ($611-678) per tonne on Monday April 13, widening upward from 2,300-2,460 riyals per tonne week on week and up from 2,230-2,360 riyals on March 30.

Given the spike in rebar prices and availability challenges for raw materials, sources said they expected further increases to scrap prices in the coming days.

"Everybody is waiting for a scrap price increase like [what happened with] rebar. Some scrap sellers are expecting around 100 riyals per tonne up," one Saudi steelmaker source said on Tuesday. "Prices for all kind of materials has gone crazy".

A second mill source also agreed that a 100 riyal increase was likely.

"Our prices are valid until Wednesday April 15. Scrap vendors have taken a 'wait and see' approach," a third Saudi mill source said.

Scrap price rising

Fastmarkets' steel scrap HMS 1&2 index, domestic composite, delivered Saudi Arabia was 1,500.49 riyals ($399) per tonne on April 14, further exceeding its highest level since pricing began in August 2025 and up by 21.44 riyals per tonne week on week from 1,479.05 riyals per tonne.

The price increase means that the Saudi Arabian local market has again caught up to CFR Turkey pricing, with the latest deal in the bellwether seaborne market reported on Thursday being a Baltic Sea cargo comprising HMS 1&2 (80:20) sold at $397.50 per tonne CFR Turkey.

In the Eastern Province, a major steelmaker was heard purchasing HMS 1&2 materials of 1.0-1.5m lengths at 1,510 riyals per tonne delivered in the week to Thursday, stable week on week but up from 1,460 riyals per tonne delivered on March 31, according to two scrap processor sources.

A second major steelmaker in the region was heard buying HMS 1&2 materials of 1.0-1.5m lengths at 1,425 riyals per tonne delivered in the week to Thursday, also stable week on week and up from 1,375 riyals per tonne on March 31, sources said.

In the western market of Jeddah, several indications were heard this week at 1,500 riyals per tonne delivered Jeddah for HMS 1&2 materials of 1.0-1.5m lengths, according to market sources.

One western steelmaker was also heard able to purchase premium-grade materials at prices of 1,580 riyals per tonne delivered, with a premium gap of 70 riyals per tonne over standard HMS 1&2 materials, a second scrap processor source said.

In the central Riyadh and Al Kharj markets, deals for sheared HMS 1&2 materials of around 0.6m lengths were heard around 1,550 riyals per tonne delivered over the last week, with another market indication at 1,560 riyals per tonne delivered.

Those prices were up from deals reported in the week to March 31 at 1,470-1,490 riyals per tonne delivered.

Market sources said that the premium for sheared HMS 1&2 materials of 0.6m over materials of standard 1.0-1.5m lengths was around 30-50 riyals per tonne depending on buyer and seller.

China domestic rebar prices stabilize amid weaker demand, strong March export data

By Jessica Zong - Tuesday 14 April

China's domestic rebar prices stabilized on Tuesday April 14 amid poor end-user demand, sources said.

End users reduced procurement tonnages of rebar on Monday, sources said, adding that they were waiting for sellers to reduce spot prices following a dip in futures prices.

The rainfall in certain cities of east China hampered construction activity and weighed on end user demand, according to sources.

However, rebar prices were supported by the seasonal recovery of March exports. China's exports for finished steel totaled 9.14 million tonnes in March, up by 16.6% from 7.84 million tonnes in February, according to data published by General Administration of Customs of China on Tuesday.

The increase in exports helped to offset the pressure of oversupply in China's domestic market, which led to positive sentiment among rebar market participants.

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar) domestic, ex-whs Eastern China was at 3,080-3,100 yuan ($452-455) per tonne on Tuesday, unchanged from Monday.

Market Chatter

"China's export demand for billet was strong in the past few weeks, following the supply gap created by Iran's suspension of billet exports to the international market. So Chinese steel mills shift crude steel capacity from rebar production to billet, which has contributed to supporting rebar prices. Nevertheless, inventories in major cities such as Hangzhou and Shanghai remain high," an industry analyst said.

Billet

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for steel billet domestic, exw Tangshan, Northern China was 2,970 yuan per tonne including value-added tax on Tuesday, unchanged from Monday.

Shanghai Futures Exchange

The most-traded October rebar futures contract on the Shanghai Futures Exchange closed at 3,094 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, down by 6 yuan per tonne from the closing price of 3,100 yuan per tonne on Monday.
