The decrease was primarily attributed to a sharp drop in exports during the first two months of the year, following the implementation of a new export licensing policy. Exporters required several weeks to familiarize themselves with the new procedures, which extended delivery timelines for export cargoes.

Exports remained high in June, though they were slightly lower than in May and insufficient to offset weaker shipments earlier in the year.

June exports totaled 10.32 million tonnes, up by 6.6% from 9.68 million tonnes a year earlier, but down by 0.2% from 10.34 million tonnes in May.

New export orders slowed in June and July compared with previous months because overseas buyers held back purchases in anticipation of potential price reductions from China. June-August is typically a seasonally weak period for steel demand and prices in China's domestic market, which tends to put downward pressure on export prices.

In addition, sources said some Iranian steel shipments were being offered to international buyers at more competitive prices than comparable Chinese products.

China's finished steel imports recorded a larger decline in the first half of the year. Total imports were 2.69 million tonnes, down by 11.3% from 3.04 million tonnes in the corresponding period of 2025.

Finished steel imports totaled 441,000 tonnes in June, down by 6.2% from 470,000 tonnes a year earlier and 2.2% from 451,000 tonnes in May.

Steel plate news

US domestic steel plate prices increase for second week in a row on elevated demand, mill price hikes

By Melissa VanDervort - Tuesday 14 July

US plate prices rose again on Tuesday July 14, with sources describing persistent strong demand and scarce spot supply availability amid low inventory levels in the domestic plate market.

Fastmarkets' weekly assessment for steel cut-to-length plate carbon grade, fob mill US was $70 per hundredweight ($1,400 per short ton) on Tuesday, up by 1.45%, or $1.00 per cwt, from $69 per cwt on July 7.

Inputs were collected in a range of $67.50-71.00 per cwt, representing offers and general indications of the spot market.

Spot plate prices have risen week on week halfway through the summer season, with sources reporting strong sustained demand and very limited spot supply in the domestic market.

"We are hearing and seeing more of the same — strong demand, higher prices and tight supply," a distributor said. "We expect this to continue for some time. Mill lead times continue to push further [out], so it's a good time if you have inventory."

A buyer shared a similar sentiment, saying, "We still are seeing supply tightness for plate products. Some of the domestic mills are either not quoting or asking us to check back later for availability. At least one plate mill is sold out through November."

SSAB Americas raised plate prices by \$40 per ton ($2 per cwt) on July 8 — the mills' third increase in less than two months — and most market participants expect other plate mills to follow suit in the near term.

"I expect mills to continue hiking prices for the next few months, at a minimum. We are seeing no falloff in demand, and are looking at double our normal backlog, with more than double our normal lead times," a second buyer said.

A second distributor agreed, saying, "There does seem to be quite a bit of strength in the market for project business with the mills. Service center business is decent, but getting done in a timely fashion is an issue. We see strength over the next few months and expect prices to get in the low $70's quickly."

Supply constraints are projected to continue throughout the next several months and tighten further with many mill outages planned for late summer and into the fall, a third distributor said.

"Plate supply looks to tighten a lot in the next 45-60 days, [and] it's already bad [now]," the third distributor said. "Those who do not yet realize [that] are in for a real rude awakening."

Lead times have extended to eight to 12 weeks.

China's domestic rebar prices stop declining on stronger demand, futures recovery

By Jessica Zong - Tuesday 14 July

China's domestic rebar prices halted their decline on Tuesday July 14, supported by stronger demand from both end users and traders. A recovery in ferrous futures also provided additional support to the market.

Buyers increased their rebar purchases during the morning session, booking cargoes at 3,050-3,060 yuan ($450-451) per tonne. A Shanghai-based trader reported that his sales volume was noticeably higher than on Monday, reflecting improved buying activity.

The decline in rebar prices over recent days attracted bargain hunters on Tuesday, encouraging both downstream buyers and trading houses to enter the market, another Shanghai-based trader said.

Stronger buying interest pushed rebar prices higher in the afternoon, with transactions concluded at 3,070-3,080 yuan per tonne.

Meanwhile, gains in the ferrous futures market provided further support to spot prices, boosting market sentiment and preventing rebar prices from extending their previous losses.

An industry analyst said the increase in rebar futures was largely linked to a rebound in China's equity market. The Shanghai Composite Index closed at 3,967.13 points on Tuesday, up by 53.34 points from 3,913.79 points on Monday.

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for steel reinforcing bar (rebar) domestic, ex-whs Eastern China was 3,050-3,080 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, unchanged from Monday.

Market chatter

"Sellers remain under pressure to improve cash flow during the seasonal downturn in rebar demand, while some are also carrying relatively high inventory levels. As a result, they are cautious about raising offer prices despite the improvement in transaction volumes," a Hangzhou-based trader said.

Billet

Fastmarkets' daily price assessment for steel billet domestic, exw Tangshan, Northern China was 2,970 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, unchanged from Monday.

Shanghai Futures Exchange

The most-traded October rebar contract on the Shanghai Futures Exchange closed at 3,090 yuan per tonne on Tuesday, up by 36 yuan per tonne from 3,054 yuan per tonne on Monday.

Steel billet news

Asia steel billet offers supported by higher crude oil prices, despite continuing muted demand

By Paul Lim - Tuesday 14 July

Steel billet import prices in Southeast Asia were largely unchanged on Tuesday July 14, despite higher crude oil prices leading to higher offers, sources told Fastmarkets.

Some offers for Chinese 5sp-grade material heading to the Philippines increased to $485-490 per tonne CFR Manila, up $5-10 per tonne from July 9.

This was mainly due to sellers pricing in higher freight costs because of the spikes in crude oil prices after the apparent end to the ceasefire in the Middle East conflict and the resumption in hostilities between the US and Iran, sources said.

But demand remained weak, they added, with end users and buyers not urgently seeking material because of the price increases. Offers were still heard at $477-480 per tonne CFR Manila.

Some end users indicated purchasing interest at around $475 per tonne CFR Southeast Asia, or slightly lower, but no new trades have been heard so far this week.

The Indonesian currency had strengthened slightly to 18,088.60 rupiah to $1 on July 14, compared with 18,307.80 rupiah to $1 on July 9. But this has not supported buying sentiment, even with a major Indonesian blast furnace-based steel producer cutting its offer price further.

The steelmaker had reduced its offer price for billet with September laycan by $5 per tonne to $460 per tonne FOB on July 13. And it also reduced its offer price for wire rod with August laycan by $5 per tonne to $485 per tonne FOB.

Chinese steel billet was on offer at $455-460 per tonne FOB, with trades heard concluded at that level. And although it was not immediately clear where the cargoes were heading, sources said that such prices meant it was unlikely they were going to the Southeast Asia market.

Chinese base-grade steel billet, meanwhile, was on offer at $445-450 per tonne FOB, or $470-475 per tonne CFR, to Southeast Asia.

Freight costs from China to Southeast Asia were heard at $18 per tonne.

The lower export offers for Chinese materials were also due to the bearish futures market and falling physical steel prices.

Fastmarkets' twice-weekly price assessment for steel billet import, cfr Manila was unchanged at $475-480 per tonne on Tuesday, unchanged from July 9.

And Fastmarkets' twice-weekly price assessment for steel billet import, cfr Indonesia was also unchanged at $475-480 per tonne on Tuesday.
