Chinese steel plate export prices narrow down following futures price pullback

By Zihuan Pan - Tuesday 19 May

Prices for Chinese steel plate exports narrowed downward in the week to Tuesday May 19, following a retreat in Shanghai steel futures prices, industry sources told Fastmarkets.

Prices for Chinese steel plate exports narrowed downward in the week to Tuesday May 19, following a retreat in Shanghai steel futures prices, industry sources told Fastmarkets.

The reduced prices, meanwhile, encouraged overseas buyers to place orders and improved trading for Chinese plate exports through the week, with some traders taking a short position to secure orders.

Chinese plate producers kept their offers at a base price of $527-565 per tonne FOB China on Monday and Tuesday, unchanged from a week earlier.

Traders indicated that the best offers from mills came in at $527-545 per tonne FOB, narrowing downward from $527-550 per tonne FOB a week earlier.

Some traders said that they were in short-selling, with a risk tolerance of about $5 per tonne, to secure orders from overseas buyers, given the recent pullback in steel futures prices amid fading concerns over elevated energy costs and euphoria over the highly anticipated meeting between US President Donald Trump and Chinese President Xi Jinping on May 14-15.

On the Shanghai Futures Exchange, the most-traded October-delivery contract for the common flat steel product – hot-rolled coil – slipped to an over-two-week low of 3,408 yuan ($499) per tonne on Tuesday, after hitting a nine-month high of 3,513 yuan per tonne on Monday May 11.

Fastmarkets’ weekly price assessment for steel heavy plate, export, fob China main port, was $527-545 per tonne on Tuesday, narrowing downward by $5 per tonne from $527-545 per tonne on May 12.

Fastmarkets’ weekly price assessment for steel plate, domestic, ex-whs Eastern China, was 3,540-3,570 yuan per tonne on May 15, refreshing the highest level in a year.

Steel plate news

US domestic plate prices rise sharply on strong demand, limited spot supply

By Melissa VanDervort - Tuesday 19 May

US steel plate prices jumped on Tuesday May 19, with most sources describing how solid demand alongside dwindling inventory levels have pushed plate prices higher in the domestic market.

Fastmarkets' weekly assessment for steel cut-to-length plate carbon grade, fob mill US was $66 per hundredweight ($1,320 per short ton) on May 19, up by $2.00 per cwt or 3.13% from $64 per cwt on May 12.

Inputs were collected in a range of $61.50-69.00 per cwt, representing deals, offers and general indications of the spot market.

Domestic plate demand remains strong, particularly in shipbuilding, military, infrastructure and data center industries, according to a distributor.

"Demand is good. [It] has a little to do with domestic plate mills [being] late on deliveries and holes developing in inventory," the distributor said. "But shipbuilding, military, bridge [and] data centers are all busy [and are] propping up demand."

Lead times have extended into mid-July as buyer inventories are getting lean, sources said, with robust demand and supply constraints contributing to sharp upward pricing momentum.

Sources also noted that recent mill price raises have been fully absorbed by the domestic market.

SSAB Americas announced a plate price increase of $40 per short ton ($2 per cwt) on May 11, while steelmaker Nucor maintained plate prices for July production in a customer letter on May 8.

"Demand remains strong and recent price increases have been well accepted by the market, with the expectation of additional increases ahead. We believe Nucor's recent [lateral] move is primarily aimed at gaining market share, though it is expected to support higher pricing in the short term," a second distributor said. "Overall, this is an advantageous time to hold inventory, especially given the shortages on certain sizes. We hope these positive conditions extend through the fall and beyond."

A third distributor shared a comparable view, saying, "Demand in [the] plate [market] is awesome. If you have material, it will sell. Someone [who] doesn't like the price will be happy with it tomorrow, because it will be sold out today. It's good to be in the US steel business."

Lead times were reported around eight weeks.

Major Eastern Saudi Arabian steel mills raise scrap prices again on raw material shortage

By Lee Allen - Tuesday 19 May

Two major steelmakers in Saudi Arabia's Eastern Province raised their purchase prices for HMS 1&2 ferrous scrap by 50 riyals per tonne over recent days, reacting to lower raw material supplies, sources said on Tuesday May 19.

The closure of shipping through the Strait of Hormuz since late February due to the regional conflict involving Iran, Israel and the United States has choked supplies of iron ore pellets and direct-reduced iron to mills across the Gulf, according to market participants.

Saudi Arabian electric arc furnace (EAF) mills have therefore been forced to raise their intake of steel scrap as a proportion of their raw materials mix to limit their reduction in steelmaking output, sources said.

"There is no scrap availability. Mills want to buy, but there is no supply," a scrap processor source told Fastmarkets on Tuesday.

Mills were looking to procure greater volumes of scrap ahead of the Eid Al-Adha Islamic holidays, which begin on Tuesday May 26, the processor said, but securing tonnage was difficult.

Logistics are "crazy" in the current market environment, a Saudi Arabian steelmaker source said, adding that his mill has been looking to raise scrap intake volumes due to challenges in getting alternative raw materials.

Steel billet news

Asia steel billet prices under pressure from falling ferrous futures in China

By Paul Lim - Tuesday 19 May

Steel billet prices in Asia edged lower on Tuesday May 19, amid downward pressure from falling ferrous futures in China, sources told Fastmarkets.

Offers for steel billet fell to $505-510 per tonne CFR Southeast Asia, sources said, compared with $510-515 per tonne CFR Southeast Asia last week.

"Given the weaker futures in China and the weak Indonesian rupiah, there is more selling pressure in the market now," a trader source in Singapore told Fastmarkets.

The Indonesian currency has fallen to a record low, at 17,650 rupiah to $1 - lower than during any previous financial crises.

"This is a double whammy for Indonesian steel consumers, on top of the recent steel price increases globally," a trader source in Indonesia told Fastmarkets.

Buyers in Indonesia and the Philippines are now looking to purchase steel billet at prices below $500 per tonne CFR, the level of the most recent concluded trades, with some indicating that $495-500 per tonne CFR would be acceptable as of Tuesday.

One major Indonesian blast furnace steelmaker maintained its offer for September-laycan steel billet at $495 per tonne FOB on Tuesday, unchanged day on day.

Fastmarkets' twice-weekly price assessment for steel billet, import, cfr Manila was $495-500 per tonne on Tuesday, widening down by $5 per tonne from $500 per tonne last Thursday.

Fastmarkets' corresponding twice-weekly price assessment for steel billet, import, cfr Indonesia was $495-500 per tonne on Tuesday, widening down by $5 per tonne from $500 per tonne on May 14.
