Inputs were collected in the seller sub-index within the 16,000-16,600 pesos per tonne range, representing general assessments of the spot market. Inputs were rolled over in the buyer sub-index due to a lack of liquidity.

"The [same] price range is valid to both Monterrey and Bajío," a producer source said.

European steel heavy plate prices show marginal increases during market stability

By Ivelina Nikolova - Friday 19 June

Prices for steel heavy plate increased slightly week on week in Italy and Germany, sources told Fastmarkets on Thursday June 18, while market conditions remained largely stable.

Italy

Indications for tradeable local plate prices were heard at €730-760 per tonne ex-works in Italy during the week, while deals were reported at €730-740 per tonne ex-works, linked to base-grade material.

A producer said base plate at €730 per tonne ex-works "feels like bottom in plate with hard resistance to go low from most producers," adding that the level is "fully conditioned by the cost of production".

Prices for steel slab imports into Italy increased in the week to Thursday, driven by the consistent push from Asian mills for higher levels, sources said.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel slab, import, cif Italy, was $590-620 per tonne on Thursday, widening upward by $15 per tonne from $590-605 per tonne a week earlier.

"[There were] no attempts to change anything with the prices so far, [and] all new movements seem postponed until the [new steel import] quota details are published," the producer source said, referring to Italian plate.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel domestic plate 8-40mm, exw Southern Europe, was €730-740 per tonne on Thursday, narrowing upward by €10 per tonne from €720-740 per tonne a week earlier.

Plate import prices into Southern Europe were indicated at €720-730 per tonne CFR, without any additional duties.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel plate (8-40mm), import, cfr main port Southern Europe, was €720-750 per tonne on Thursday, narrowing upward by €20 per tonne from €700-750 per tonne a week earlier.

Germany

Offers for steel heavy plate in Germany were heard at €790-850 per tonne ex-works, unchanged from a week earlier.

No significant fresh activity was reported in the market, with sources citing slow demand, which normally occurs during the summer season.

Fastmarkets' weekly price assessment for steel domestic plate 8-40mm, exw Northern Europe, was €790-850 per tonne on Thursday, widening upward by €10 per tonne from €790-840 a week earlier.

Turkish steel mills see limited scrap deals amid weak market demand

By Cem Turken - Friday 19 June

Turkish steel producers have ended the working week having made only two deep-sea scrap import deals because of sluggish finished steel demand in the country's domestic and export markets, industry sources told Fastmarkets on Friday June 19.

A steel mill in the Iskenderun region booked a US cargo of HMS 1&2 (80:20) at $388 per tonne CFR.

This compared with the previous cargo deal heard on June 16, when a steel mill in Izmir booked a Baltic Sea cargo of HMS 1&2 (80:20) at $387 per tonne CFR.

As a result of this transaction, the daily scrap indices inched downward on June 19.

Fastmarkets' daily index for steel scrap, HMS 1&2 (80:20 mix), US origin, cfr Turkey, was calculated at $388.00 per tonne on Friday, down by $1.17 per tonne day on day.

The corresponding index for steel scrap, HMS 1&2 (80:20 mix), North Europe origin, cfr Turkey, was calculated at $383.02 per tonne on June 19, also down by $1.17 per tonne day on day.

This left the premium for US scrap over European material at $4.98 per tonne at the end of the week.

Turkish steelmakers have been struggling with very weak finished long steel demand in both the domestic and export markets. As a result, they have kept deep-sea scrap imports to a minimum in an effort to put downward pressure on prices.

Scrap prices could fall further in the near term, with HMS 1&2 (80:20) prices potentially moving quickly toward $350-355 per tonne CFR Turkey, according to a Turkish trading source. "The euro is weakening against the dollar and, more importantly, the domestic finished steel market has come to a complete halt," the source said. "July and August will be difficult months."

The source added that the weakness in domestic steel demand was linked to financial stress in the market, particularly among flat steel traders. "I am hearing that there are many bankruptcies, especially among flat steel traders. Mills are trying to reduce their costs," he said.

Local scrap prices were also under downward pressure, according to the same source. "Local scrap prices in Iskenderun are being cut every three days," he said.

Another Turkish trading source also expected the downturn in scrap prices to continue, citing weaker European demand and the summer slowdown. "I think the softening will continue. There is no demand in Europe and the summer period has started," the source said.

The same source added that US suppliers were unhappy with the latest lower-priced indications but were under pressure from cheaper Europe-origin material. "The US sellers we speak to are not pleased with the latest prices but, once European prices fall, they have no choice," he said.

A Turkish mill source said that the market remained too weak for mills to accept current offers. "The prices are around the same, but nobody would buy at those levels. The [finished steel] market is dead," the mill source said.

The same source attributed the weakness in domestic steel demand to financial pressure in the market.

Fastmarkets' price assessment for steel scrap, auto bundle scrap, domestic, delivered Turkey was 17,205-18,600 Turkish lira ($372-402) per tonne on June 15, widening downward from 17,505-18,600 lira per tonne a week earlier.
